Course Description: Students develop knowledge of the diverse cultural impact on multinational trade, marketing, finance, management and government policies. Emphasis will be on the cultural dynamics of cultural business.

Statement of Prerequisites: none

Goal: Students will demonstrate an understanding of the challenges involved in conducting business in global markets; be able to discuss and demonstrate understanding of the various international organizations and systems that affect the international business environment, and know how to research the current state of specific foreign country’s business environments.

Outcomes:
1. Demonstrate effective oral and written communication.
2. Demonstrate knowledge of diverse cultures and their respective perspectives.
3. Use appropriate technology and information to conduct research.

Objectives: An introductory understanding of international business will be measured by students achieving a minimum of 70% of overall possible points on graded work and projects.

Methodology: This course is viewed as a collaborative undertaking between the students and instructor. In portion, the class will be conducted as an interactive seminar, with students contributing to the discussions. In addition to class discussion, material will be presented through lectures, guest speakers and other handout materials. Some case problem solving will be utilized.

Chapter readings: MUST be done ahead of time to allow for proper participation in class discussions.

Assignments: Questions at the end of each chapter are to be typed and handed in at the beginning of class on the due date. Note they are due even when we have scheduled speakers even though we may only discuss them at a later date.

Guest speakers- There will be several guest speakers during the semester, The information they present will be considered lecture material. Each student will be responsible for asking the speaker a question “with substance”, then submitting that question and the answer provided for grading.

Participation: Points will be awarded for participation. Please do not underestimate the importance of participation in this course. It is an important part of your final grade since communication skills in whatever setting are important for success in different cultures. Class contributions regarding readings may consist of comments on the readings assigned, comments on how the textbook information or lecture material related to specific situations, statements of problems or issues related to the reading, applying the readings to your personal experiences, questions about the readings, etc.

Projects: Projects will consist of:

1. Analysis of personal culture- Try to locate the foremost authorities on your own culture (i.e., US, Brazilian, Japanese). Please use reputable sources and don’t rely just on the internet. Prepare a 1-2 page executive summary that includes the 7-10 key values of your culture accompanied by behavioral examples, and an explanation of the internal logic of your culture. If you’re not familiar with executive summaries, google an example. List your research using bullet points to explain your culture. Questions to be answered in the body of your summary: Why are these values so important? What occurred in the history of your culture (economic, political, demographic composition, geography, etc.) to make these values so important? (This will be the most difficult part of this assignment!!). This should span from the beginning of the country to current. Come prepared to share what you’ve learned.

2. Country Report- The goal is to learn about a particular country and present that information to the rest of the class as if you were preparing them to go to that country. This will be prepared by teams. The goal will be to learn about a country and provide insight into how to do business in that country. Use credible, academic sources of information (not people from that country or tourist guide, etc.) Make sure and cite sources correctly. Prepare a written report in the form of an executive summary of facts using bullet points. List the categories, followed by facts, sources, etc. Each team will present their information orally to the class, in addition to submitting the written report.
