Course Description: The course will cover reading original ancient Latin authors; Latin; readings from Eutropius, Julius Caesar, Cicero, Pliny and Petronius; review and refinement of the major aspects of Latin grammar and syntax; the refinement of translation techniques; the study of Roman history and life from 100 B.C.-14 A.D.; and the influence of Latin on our world of today.

Extended Course Description: Attendance is very important in a language class. You are expected to attend all classes and notify the instructor in case of illness or emergency. Students will receive a list of assignments each week with the due date. Late assignments will be accepted only in case of illness or emergency. Please call the instructor on the day of the absence. Language study cannot be crammed. Memorization in particular is done best in short, repeated sessions of studying. It helps to write out Latin forms or make vocabulary and grammar cards.

Goals: Student will become familiar with:
- techniques to translate original Latin authors
- Latin vocabulary
- Major aspects of Latin grammar and syntax
- Principals of English Grammar and structure
- study of Roman History of 100 B.C.-14 A.D.
- readings from Eutropius, Julius Caesar, Cicero, Pliny, and Petronius.

Outcomes: Successful completion of course goals.

Methodology:
Points are given for homework, graded assignments, quizzes, exams and presentations. There will also be ancillary resources such as vocabulary games, quizzes, grammar and forms exercises, games, and cultural information on the internet created by various teachers. The students will be able to access these resources by going to their search engine and typing in Ecce Romani.

Evaluation Criteria: The grading scale will be as follows:
- A = 90-100
- B = 80-89
- C = 70-79
- D = 60-69
- F = 59 and below

Course Specific Detail:
Make up exams and quizzes will be given only by appointment, and for illness and emergencies only. In that event, students must call on the day of the exam and get the absence cleared.

Required Text, Readings, & Materials: Ecce Romani III, editor Gilbert DeWall
Publisher: Prentice Hall
