Course Description: An introduction to the economic behavior of firms and households in a market economy and the environment in which they operate. Also studies the roles of government and foreign trade, as it relates to the decisions of firms and households.

Statement of Prerequisites: Math 0920 with a grade of C or better, an ACT math score of 21 or better, or a compass score of 40 on the algebra domain. Little algebraic manipulation will be used, but knowledge of graphing and coordinate geometry is essential for success in this course.

Goal: The student should learn microeconomic principles, so as to understand how economics applies to all decision making in our lives. In essence, a student will learn to think like an economist.

Outcomes: The following three measurable outcomes are expected from a student completing microeconomic principles.

1. Demonstrate effective oral and written communication
2. Solve problems using critical thinking and creativity
3. Use quantitative analytical skills to evaluate and process numerical data

Course Objectives: Learn the basic principles of human behavior and decision making as they are used to model the actions of individuals, firms, and government in an economy.

Methodology: Lectures, with opportunity for in-class questions and discussion.

Evaluation Criteria: The course grade is based on three hour exams, six quizzes, four homework assignments, and one comprehensive final. Each of the hour exams, as well as the quiz average, counts for 20% of the final grade. The lowest of these four grades will be dropped. In addition, homework will be collected and will count for 10% of the final grade, and the final exam will count for 30% of the final grade.

Regular class attendance is strongly recommended, but not required. Your course grade is not explicitly based on the number of classes attended. However, attendance is required on the following exam dates, as makeup exams are only given in extraordinary circumstances (e.g. you
